SCOUTS' PAPER COLLECTION

Since paper is still a scarce article, the Mokena Boy Scouts will again salvage paper this spring. This will serve a threefold purpose. It will conserve material of which there is still a shortage, it will help the Scout to earn his summer camp fees, and it will undergird the general program of the Troop.

Citizens of Mokena can do a "good turn" if they will notify Scouts to come and pick up their accumulated paper.

If you do not know whom to call, the following patrol leaders will respond or relay the call to a scout near your home. They are: Ramon Gunhouse, Jack Martie and Ronald Steen.

McGee Waging Strong Fight For Sherriff

Walter H. McGee, of 604 Second Ave., Joliet, chief deputy sheriff for the past seven years, who is seeking the Republican nomination for sheriff, is basing his campaign on his previous experience.

He served as chief deputy under Sheriffs James F. O'Neill and Ralph H. Newkirk. During this time he was instrumental in introducing many features into the office to help provide the public with more efficient protection and service. Outstanding among these was the installation of the two-way radio in the county squad cars. This enables deputies to answer calls more rapidly and to keep in contact with the office while making investigations.

Mr. McGee has always looked with favor on well organized F-Men organizations throughout the county and has fostered coordination between the sheriff's office and the F-Men groups. I the interest of public welfare, he urged Sheriff Newkirk to send one of the deputies to the FBI school in Washington for a course in police work. Last year, it was the first time in the history of the local sheriff's office that a deputy was sent to Washington for such training. Since returning from Washington, the deputy with the chief's aid, is establishing a complete fingerprinting, photographing and indexing room upstairs in the county jail.

In the betterment of office administration, Mr. McGee advocated the installation of a receipt machine in the upstairs in the county jail.

In the betterment of office administration, Mr. McGee advocated the installation of a receipt machine in the sheriff's office, which records all fees received. In addition, he and Sheriff O'Neill established an eight-hour day for deputies and jailers, who had been working 12-hour shifts. It was their theory that greater efficiency could be achieved by means of a shorter work day. This plan speaks for itself, when it is noted that there have been no major breaks in recent years.

A former employee of the E. J. and E. Railroad, Mr. McGee has been active in Republican party circles throughout his lifetime. He attends the Richards Street Methodist Church and holds membership in the Mt. Joliet Lodge No. 42, A.F. & A.M.

He is married and has two daughters one of whom resides in Indianapolis, Indiana.

"CRAIG'S WIFE" PLAYS TO PACKED HOUSE

The Village Players spring play, "Craig's Wife" was enjoyed by large audiences last week-end. Much cider and do-nuts were consumed at the Friday night party after the play.

This drama was so fine a piece of serious acting as the writer has seen since Lucy Pirandello's "Six Characters". Peg Gibbons portrayal of the scheming, nagging wife whose home to her was a cold monument to her own selfishness was superb. The scene at the final curtain where she has been deserted by her husband relatives and servants, was pathetic when it becomes evident that what she is, is due to childhood adversity and that she is a semi-psychopath who is badly in need of help.

Don Bussey as Mr. Craig did a perfect job in his role and caused many a feminine heart to flutter. The stage is not new to this good looking fellow as he has done Shakespeare and Gilbert and Sullivan with eternal player groups.

Ida Puschel as the house keeper got much applause for her fine work. Incidentally this is her first mole on any stage.

The supporting cast was on its toes to keep up the standard of Village Players fine dramatic work.

Marley Farm and Community Program Ends

Dr. Gail Johnson, Research Associate, of the Department of Agricultural Economics of the University of Chicago, will be the banquet speaker next Tuesday, when the The Marley Community Farm-Life Program, concludes its winter meetings. Dr. Johnson, formerly of Ames, Iowa, will discuss some aspects of the Agricultural picture for the future in the light of world conditions.

The banquet will be the last meeting of the Farm-Life Program, which this year has held classes for men, women and children each Tuesday night. Tickets are on sale for members and their friends at cost and the meeting will start at 7:30.

In its second year, the Program has drawn farmers and their families from the community to a study and discussion of problems close to their work. Each week, there has been a class for men, one for women, and a craft class for older children. Since a nursery has also been provided, families have been able to come together, knowing that there would be something to interest each age level. The men have studied such topics as: Care and Repair of Farm Machinery, Dairy Production, Farm Building Repairs, to mention only a few. Outside speakers have come to the women's class to lead discussions in: Child Care and Training, Home Beautification, and Home Gardening. Under the direction of Mr. Homer Sablin, the older children have hammered, sawn, painted, and molded, all to the creation of useful and beautiful crafts.

The average attendance at the meetings has been between sixty and seventy. The monthly Forums on different aspects of current affairs have brought to the Program such speakers as Louis Bottino, Donald Sharpe, Byron Gaskill and many others who have stimulated their audiences to lively discussion.

In the opinion of those who have attended, it has been a successful year and their interest in next year's program is already high. The Farm-Life Program is the result of the co-operation of the Department of Vocational Agriculture of the Joliet Township High School and the Marley Community Church. Administering the Program has been an Advisory Council of men and women, to which Mr. Elmer Rowley and the Reverend Paul Saunders acted as advisors.

Course of Stream Being Altered Say Railroad Officials

Wm. Hafka, Highway Commissioner of New Lenox is in receipt of a letter from Superintendent Heide of the Rock Island railroad stating that the rubbish which has been dumped into Hickory Creek near the railroad bridge between New Lenox and Mokena is changing the course of the stream and threatening to endanger the bridge. Supt. Heide wanted to know what can be done to stop the further dumping of rubbish into the creek.

Commissioner Hafka is having men watch and if they spot any one dumping rubbish at the point mentioned, he will bring legal action against them.

It is pity that the public is so indifferent about keeping their community neat and that threat of legal action has to be used to bring them in line.

The rubbish dump is not only endangering property, but is an eye sore and a health menace. The state ought to investigate this situation. Commissioner Hafka warns that he will take strenuous action to bear to stop the rubbish dumping nuisance.

Ditches along the Rock Island right of way right in the village of Mokena are littered with bottles, tin cans, rubbish, garbage, etc. It is high time this evil be stopped. The Rock Island ought to check up on this.

LEWIS IN REAL ESTATE

WASHINGTON.—Just how vigorously John L. Lewis plans to enter his battle to recapture the CIO came out at the AFL executive board meeting in Miami, where the bushy-browed labor thespian joined his former enemies in a holy war against his former friends, Phil Murray and the CIO.

One of Lewis' first moves was to persuade the AFL to move out of its shabby 30-year-old headquarters to a modern streamlined building near the White House.

Lewis was named chairman of an AFL committee to acquire the new building. Some years ago John paid a quarter of a million for the University club, once the home of Washington elite, and made it his United Mine Workers headquarters.

'VOTED AGAINST VETERANS'

Veterans are considering a new symbol which may become as famous as the label "Made by Union Labor." It will probably take the form of the initials "VAHV."

When these initials are used immediately following a congressman's name, it will indicate that he "voted against veterans."

Congressmen, already sensitive about this year's elections, are worried sick about the recent vote on housing for veterans, especially the vote on subsidies which would have permitted low-cost homes at a price-range which veterans could afford.

This worry was why congress ducked a roll-call vote. If each congressman had been forced to stand up and be counted, it would have been political suicide for some.

The Democrats, despite a plea from President Truman himself, plus telegrams from Bob Hannegan, split ranks. Here are the Democrats who in the future will be labeled "VAHV" (voted against veterans' housing) in this important test vote: Barden, N. C.; Brown, Ga.; Camp, Ga.; Colmer, Miss.; Cox, Ga.; Cravens, Ark.; Dough-ton, N. C.; Durham, N. C.; Earthman, Tenn.; Ervin, N. C.; Gathings, Ark.; Gibson, Ga.; Hare, S. C.; Lanham, Texas; McMillan, S. C.; Manasco, Ala.; May, Ky.; Mills, Ark.; Murdock, Ariz.; Murray, Tenn.; Pacen, Ga.; Page, Texas; Riley, S. C.; Roe, Md.; Russell, Texas; Slaughter, Mo.; Smith, Va.; Sumners, Texas; Tarver, Ga.; Vin-son, Ga.; Whitten, Miss.; Whitting-ton, Miss.

NYE'S RESIDENCE

Ex-Senator Gerald Nye took a setback in his first attempt to return to his old senate seat. People in North Dakota didn't like the fact that Nye continued his residence in Maryland, though running in North Dakota, and he didn't get far in the first Republican primaries.

STEEL HEADACHE

One of the biggest reconversion headaches is lack of steel. Hundreds of smaller firms, including Henry Kaiser's new auto company, can't get steel, while strike-struck General Motors was gorged with it. Recently General Motors officials traveled to Washington, wangled a promise from OPA Administrator Jack Small that he would not confiscate the thousands of tons of strategic materials which General Motors is hoarding. Small has cracked down on smaller companies hoarding nylons, but General Motors appears too big to touch.

CAPITAL CHAFF

Democrats were wrangling last week about the right of Chicago's Representative Sabath to be heard as much as Mississippi's Representative John Rankin. Meanwhile, GOP Leader Joe Martin went over to Democrat Mike Monroney of Oklahoma and said: "Mike, the next time you Democrats get into a scrap like this and it comes to a vote, we're just going to vote 'present' and let you Democrats fight it out yourselves." . . . Atlanta's new congresswoman, Mrs. Helen Douglas Mankin, has been assiduously cultivated by the Georgia delegation—with long visits on the floor of the house even from the two Georgia senators—George and Russel. But the first chance she got she voted against Rankin. . . . North Carolina's Chairman Bob Doughton of the house ways and means committee not only believes that people should continue paying the wartime excess-tax rates on luxuries such as furs, but also that children should continue paying the wartime tax on movie tickets. "After all," says Doughton, "kids don't have to go to the movies—they're a luxury."

VIGOROUS LOBBYING

Capitol Hill today is more besieged by lobbyists than at any time in years. Big utility lobbyists are working against any increase of federal power, even passing out nylons to congressmen's wives to win votes. The American Legion is buttonholing senators in favor of military conscription, and the railroad lobbyists are pulling wires in favor of the Bulwinkle bill which exempt the railroads from anti-trust suits.

A NATION DEMANDS A KING

LESSON TEXT—1 Samuel 8:10-22.
MEMORY SELECTION—Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord.—Psalm 33:12.

A major crisis has come in the life of a nation when it is ready to change its form of government. That was especially true in the case of Israel, for they were about to throw off the direct rule of God and demand a king.

There were good reasons for their desire. Samuel was old. His sons who were to succeed him were not honest (1 Sam. 8:3). But there were other motives not so good; for example, their desire to have the pomp of a kingly ruler and a wish to be like other peoples (v. 20).

Their request was made known to Samuel (1 Sam. 8:6). He was grieved, but the Lord showed him that it was not His rule they were rejecting, but God's rule (v. 7).

The matter came to a crisis as Samuel was sent to reason with them (v. 9).

I. Prophetic Words (vv. 10-18).

There is always a price to pay if we are eager to follow the styles of this world. Israel wanted to have a king with an attractive court and a mighty army like their neighbors, the other nations, but they had not realized that such things are not provided out of the king's pocket.

A word of warning may be in place here for Christians who have fallen for the temptation to keep pace with their ungodly neighbors—to "keep up with the Joneses," as it is sometimes put.

Government has a right to call on the governed for its support, but who will deny that the tremendous military establishments which the rulers of the earth have maintained have been both burdensome and provocative of war.

We live in a sinful world, and we may as well face the necessity of protecting ourselves and policing the unruly, but think how much better would be our lot if we like Israel could have been under the direct rule of God.

They did not want it. Are men any better today when they reject the beneficent rule of the Son of God over their lives?

II. Persistent Wills (vv. 19, 20).

The people refused to hearken. Their stubborn reply was, "Nay, but we will have a king over us," and one can almost hear the emphasis on the word will.

One might have expected that the leaders of the people would have sensed the folly of their plan and asked God to continue to rule over them forever, but the stubbornness of the willful human heart is almost beyond belief. When its determination is coupled with pride and unbelief it becomes an even more appalling barrier to the blessing of God.

Therein lies the outstanding lesson of these verses. Let us beware that we do not sin like Israel; yes, sin even worse than they did. Joseph Parker in the People's Bible (vol. 6, p. 287) makes this acute application of the truth: "Do we condemn them? Let us not be ready with reproach; nor urgent in condemnation. We are doing a deadlier thing it may be than the elders of Israel did in this case. We are told that God is angry with the wicked every day; that the wicked shall be driven into hell, and all the nations that forget God. We are told that the liar shall have his portion in the lake which burneth with fire and brimstone, that no drunkard shall enter the kingdom of heaven, that anything unclean, defiled or corrupt shall not pass into the city of God's light; we are told that nothing remaineth for the sinner but a fearful looking for of judgment and fiery indignation."

"What is the result? Men can go immediately from the hearing or reading of the most terrific statements concerning the future of the wicked and can throw themselves with unbridled license into all the diabolical enjoyments which stimulate but never satisfy the corrupt soul."

III. Providential Willingness (vv. 21, 22).

Reluctantly, but inevitably, comes the divine expression of willingness to let man go the way he wants to go. Israel shall have a king, says God. In fact He had prophesied this day long before (see Deut. 17: 14-20).

So it is true (to quote Parker again) that "we can force our way through all solemn warning, all pathetic entreaty, all earnest persuasiveness . . . We can go to hell if we will . . . There is nothing before you but love, grace, mercy, tenderness, God. That is all. There is a cross—hew it down! There is a way around it, a way through it, a way over it—you can get there!"

May we, neither as individuals nor as a nation, thus thwart God's love and reject His warnings, and go on our own stubborn way into sin and sorrow.

Seed Analyst Is Her Unusual Job

Mrs. Pattison Admitted to Be Highest Authority
In Odd Specialty.

By WALTER A. SHEAD
WNU Washington Correspondent.

WASHINGTON.—A world traveler since 1920, a commuter to Europe and Asia with 30,000 miles of travel in the past year, scientist, farmer, seed analyst, cat collector, breeder of Hungarian pulk dogs, blue-eyed, dark, greying hair, a deep sense of humor and a ready smile, and oh, yes . . . aged 45 and a yen to retire on her Connecticut farm . . . such is Mrs. Ethel Ely Pattison, seed specialist for the agricultural rehabilitation program of United Nations relief and rehabilitation administration.

And in her post with UNRRA, Mrs. Pattison is responsible for the procurement, analysis, and distribution of approximately 50,000 tons of seed gathered from every seed-producing state in the Union, Canada and other parts of the world and shipped to eight European countries and China for 1946 planting.

England, France, Germany, Belgium, Italy, Austria, Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia, Russia and China and other countries have been visited and their seed and agricultural problems analyzed scientifically by Mrs. Pattison in her job for UNRRA and she has laid first stress on cereals, such as wheat, barley, oats, rye and corn, as the most essential for these countries. Next comes forage, such as grass seeds and root crops for animals; third on vegetables and finally on industrial seeds including hemp, flax, sugar beets and soy beans.

Wanted to Be a Surgeon.

Mrs. Pattison has a farm background, although she is a native of Washington, D. C., but spent most of her childhood on a farm in Fairfax county, Va. Her ambition was to become a surgeon, "a most irregular wish for a female of the 1890s and early 1900s," she says.

She was torn between the wishes of her father, who wanted her to become a musician, and her mother who trained her in the domestic sciences . . . and now she has two homes, one in New York City and another at East Hadden, Conn., where she owns a 180-acre farm.

Shortly after the death of her husband, Perry H. Pattison, a patent attorney, in 1943, she joined the staff of UNRRA after having spent nine years as a seed analyst for the department of agriculture, several years as director of laboratories and scientific research for the Doughton Seed company of New York, and then operating her own seed company, International Seed, Inc. from 1927 to August, 1944.

As co-ordinator for UNRRA's seed program, she has had an opportunity to see at first hand the needs of the impoverished and war-torn European countries.

She spent some time in the Soviet Union and found officials of that country "extremely co-operative and friendly at all times."

To Take Another Jaunt.

This energetic woman has made an unusual work, seed analysis and scientific production, her vocation, and she is soon to leave for another four-month jaunt across Europe in behalf of her work for UNRRA.

"If UNRRA doesn't kill me off, my wish for the future," she says, "is eventually to spend the major part of the year at the farm in Connecticut with my synthetic family. Now that I am past the grandmother age, the family is synthetic, and consists of two foster French sisters and a ward, a lad of 14."

"My agricultural friends, who are used to the flat fertile farms of the middle west and the valleys of the Pacific coast, think a Connecticut farm is a joke, for as Brown said, 'it is easier to raise boulders in Connecticut, than broccoli.'"

Continuing her look into the future, she said:

"I hope to live long enough to show them

W.N.U. RELEASE

THE STORY THUS FAR: "I want you to go over to Hemmings and get the sheriff," Jim told Sherwin, who protested that he didn't know the way. His real reason was that the sheriff would arrest him. But Jim wanted Sheriff Cutler to go after Jordan, the outlaw. Sherwin got on a horse at last, but went the wrong way deliberately. Suddenly he decided he was a coward, and turned to go back—and face the worst. He heard Jane's voice, then saw her in a clump of bushes. He saw something else—Jordan creeping up to abduct her. Jane tried to fight him off, but Jordan lifted her up to carry her away. Sherwin attacked, but Jordan escaped again, wounding Sherwin's arm with a knife.

CHAPTER V

"Jim, he's faint from loss of blood—look at him!"

Old Mac intervened. "I'll fix him up; you go 'phone for the doc, Jane," he thrust his hand through Sherwin's well arm. "You come along with me, son. Hello!" he shaded his eyes with his hand. "Say, Jim, if I ain't mistaken—th' sheriff's coming across th' bridge right now!" he added, pointing.

Jim gave a quick exclamation of satisfaction. "So he is. Got a posse, too. Just in the nick of time—it's all right that you didn't go for him now, Hazlett!"

Sherwin flushed suddenly to his hair, but no one noticed it. Jane was running on ahead to telephone for the doctor, Mac had him by the arm, and Jim had apparently become absorbed in the approaching posse.

"Send a man over for that horse, Mac," he threw back as he hurried off.

Sherwin's face was set. The old man peered at him sideways, ruminating.

"Thought you knew the way to Hemmings." His tone was casual, and he went on at once; "It's a pity you missed baggin' Jordan; he's got th' start of us now."

"We'll have to get him," Sherwin answered absently. He had watched Jane's figure disappearing into the house and now he saw the sheriff's posse riding up the long slope to Las Palomas.

"It seems to take a good many men to hunt down one out here," he remarked dryly.

"Kinder nasty hurt," old Mac said, "but there ain't no bones broken. I'll wash it an' th' doc'll fix it up all right."

While he worked, his patient sat by the window watching the posse. He expected to be called to tell his story of Jordan, but he was not, and, as time passed, he began to wonder why. Then old Mac startled him more.

"I reckon you don't know that Jane's said to be goin' to marry Stenhardt, do you?" he asked casually.

He felt Sherwin stiffen under his hands.

"I think she will not!" he said sharply.

Mac stared. Then he fell silent, eyes straying out of the window, following Sherwin's. The old man was farsighted. He made out a paper in the sheriff's hand, and after a moment Jim took it and both men stared at it.

"The sheriff's got a description of some one that's wanted," he said finally. "I've seen them papers before now."

Sherwin did not answer; his arm was bound up and he rose suddenly and made for the door which opened on the posse. But Mac caught him back.

"Don't you do it, son!"

Sherwin stared at him. "What do you mean?"

The old man smiled grimly. "I reckon I kinder suspicion why you took th' wrong road, son; you don't need to meet th' sheriff here, Jim ain't called for you."

For a moment longer Sherwin stared at him sternly, then he flung himself into a chair beside the table, and leaning across it, buried his head in his arms. Old Mac came and stood beside him, looking down at him pityingly, for he saw his broad shoulders shake with a hard drawn, bitter sob.

"Got any new men on?" Cutler had asked. "Seen a fellow like that picture?"

Jim studied the picture a long time silently, then he looked around at the sheriff.

"What's he wanted for, Cutler?"

"Murder, first degree. Escaped convict from Rhode Island; it's for life there, you know."

Jim nodded. "Better leave the paper with me," he said at last; "new men come along every now and then."

"That's so! Personally I don't think likely he's round these parts; too far off his beat, eh?" The sheriff moved to the door. "By the way, Keller, where's that fellow who mixed it up for Jordan? Send him along to show us the way he went."

"I'll send old MacDowell, he knows," Jim said promptly. "The other man's got a bad arm; I've phoned for the doctor for him." As he spoke he accompanied the sheriff to the door and shouted for Mac. The old man answered at once and got his orders to go with the posse. He cast a sharp look at Jim's face and obeyed without a word.

At the moment Jim scarcely noticed that he did not suggest that the man whom they called Hazlett should go, but he thought of it as he turned back into the house, a furrow of worry between his own brows. It seemed as if Mac had caught at the meaning of things by instinct, or had he found out something himself? Standing alone in the hall, he took out the sheriff's paper and studied it. The picture of the escaped convict was unusually clear-cut and good, the description accurate. Jim was still studying it when he heard a light step behind him and turned to meet Fanny Sewell. The young nurse caught the trouble in his face at a glance.

"There's something wrong!" she said quickly.

"Nothing much wrong when I see you!" Jim answered heartily.

But she was not to be put off. "You're worried!"

For answer Jim held out the paper. "Ever see that face before, Fanny?"

The girl gave it a startled look, then she scrutinized it carefully, her own face changing sharply.

"Oh!" It was an exclamation of dismay, as she lifted her troubled eyes to his.

"Can't be mistaken, can it?" Jim asked grimly.

"It's terribly like him—what's the crime?"

Jim turned the paper over. "There's a statement—pretty bad, too!"

Fanny began to read it slowly, her face losing its happy flush.

"He's saved my life—and got Jane away from Jordan today. It's—it's darned hard to know what to do!"

The nurse did not seem to hear him. As she read she paled, and suddenly she caught at a chair and gasped, her eyes dilated.

"Good Lord, Fanny—my darling girl, what is it?" Jim forgot his quandary as he caught her in his arms.

"Nothing!" she tried to smile. "I—I was a little dizzy—there's Jane now!"

Jim, still anxious and perplexed, looked around.

"Hello, Jane—Stenhardt! Come along. Fanny's overdone, she's faint; I've made her sit down," as he spoke he was putting the nurse into the big chair at his desk.

Stenhardt, following Jane, came in slowly, leaning on his stick.

"What's it all about?" he asked.

Jane was getting a glass of water for Fanny, and as she brought it Jim held out the sheriff's paper.

"Look here, Jane!"

His sister ignored him, fussing over the other girl. "Feeling better, dear? Sit down, Max, or you'll overtake yourself!" Then, straightening up: "What's that, Jim?"

He handed her the description and the picture.

Jane stared at it, changing color, then she flung it down.

"Well," she said defiantly, "what of it?"

Jim saw the anger and pride in her face. Suddenly he remembered the scene by the creek, when he found her there with Sherwin.

"By Jove!" he breathed, and turned sharply. "Max, look at that!" He snatched the paper up and handed it to Stenhardt.

Stenhardt was reading it when they heard a step on the veranda and Sherwin came into the hall. His arm was bandaged and his face was colorless.

"Oh!" cried Jane impulsively, "you shouldn't—your arm—"

But he did not look at her, he was looking at Stenhardt. There was a tense moment. No one spoke, then Stenhardt laughed—laughed out loud, holding out the paper and looking at Jim.

"It's the man," he said; "can't you see? Use your eyes! I've known this fellow before—his name's John Sherwin; he killed his old uncle because he'd left him out of his will, cut him off. He's escaped from jail. He was sentenced for life; I know it! He's an escaped convict!"

Sherwin said nothing. He faced him and his right hand dropped suddenly to his hip. Stenhardt shrieked, crumpling against the wall.

"Don't let him kill me!" he panted.

Jim started forward but Jane was ahead of him; she caught at Sherwin's sleeve. She took no notice of the others; she seemed to see no one but this one man.

"Tell me," she whispered, her lips white, "tell me it isn't true!"

Sherwin put her hand away and stood alone, facing them.

"It's true that I'm the man they want," he said harshly, "and it's true," he raised his hand and pointed at Stenhardt, "it's true that I came here to kill him."

Jane shrank away from him; without a word she recoiled. Their eyes held each other a moment longer but there was no answer in hers. He saw her shrink and shudder.

There was a terrible silence; the others stood staring, dumbly. Then Stenhardt backed farther away, white and shaken.

"He'll kill me—don't let him come near me!" he cried hysterically.

Sherwin turned and looked his scorn at him. "I'll not kill you here," he said coldly. His face was white and drawn; he did not look at Jane again but at Jim. "You can give me up," he said harshly; "I came to tell you so. There's a reward," he added bitterly. "Stenhardt here might like it!"

Fanny Sewell's head dropped; she sobbed chokingly.

Jim intervened. He stepped in front of Jane and took Sherwin by the unwounded arm. "Come!" he said sternly.

Sherwin cast one quick look of anguish at Jane, turned without a word and went.

As he went Stenhardt collapsed into a chair, but Jane did not even glance at him. She stood with her back against the wall, staring in front of her with unseeing eyes. He had dared to make love to her and he was a convict! Her head swam and her mouth was dry, but she said nothing.

Outside the house, Jim had his hand on Sherwin's arm.

"Melt away," he said grimly; "you saved me and you rescued my sister—I'll do nothing, nothing at all. Melt away!"

They stood still in the broad daylight. It was afternoon now, and some doves were cooing in the trees. Sherwin turned gravely and looked at Keller, his pale face flushed a little.

"I don't want to make such a claim upon your generosity," he said stiffly. "Better give me up."

Jim swore a little. "I'm not that kind," he said; then his eyes traveled toward the distant windings of the road. He took out his field-glasses and searched it as far off as he could see. He made out a dark patch moving on the upper road.

"You go and stay with Mac until dark; that's the sheriff up there. After dark you can get off."

Sherwin said nothing; if he wanted to make a plea in his own defense he saw it was useless, he was judged. Yet there was something about Jim that was so likeable he could not be angry with him.

"We're not so far from the border after all," Jim added casually. "I'd head that way—if I were you."

Sherwin looked up. "You're generous, I appreciate it."

Jim turned away awkwardly. He was half way to the house when he turned and spoke over his shoulder.

"I'm relying on you not to stay around Las Palomas," he said grimly.

Sherwin nodded; it was the only thing Jim had said which infuriated him. It made him feel his position; he was an outcast—spared because he had done something for both of them, the girl and her brother. Her last look at him had repudiated him as completely as Jim's words; they both believed him guilty. The girl would marry Stenhardt!

Suddenly he laughed aloud, harshly. What a mad fool he had been. He might have killed Stenhardt under the trees that morning. It was useless to play fair with a snake. His eyes swept the wide slopes of the ranch. The men had stopped hammering; it was near supper time, and he could see groups of them down by the corrals. In the water under the bridge he saw the big white horns of a drowned steer; there had been too much to do to recover all the bodies for cremation. Presently he too might be found lying in some creek, starved on his long hike for freedom. He had not moved from the spot where Jim had left him when he heard old Mac call to him.

"Come in here, I've got something for you to eat," the old man said brusquely, holding open the door of his own room behind the kitchen.

Sherwin saw that he had a good meal spread for him and a knapsack packed. As Mac closed the door behind him he looked around at him and saw compassion on the lined face.

"You knew I was going," he said quickly. "Did Keller tell you over the 'phone just now?"

Mac smiled. "You told me, son! I've lived a long while. I learned how to get behind a man's spoken words, a right smart while ago. Sit down and eat, ain't any use staryin'."

C., is able to bring readers this weekly column on problems of the veteran and serviceman and his family. Vets' Hospital Facilities To Be Greatly Enlarged

Reflecting the need for increased hospitalization facilities and the pushing of the Veterans' administration hospital construction program, is the fact that at the beginning of February a total of 17,015 veterans were on the hospital list awaiting entrance and the number was increasing at the rate of approximately 4,000 per month.

As a matter of fact, however, less than 4 per cent of those awaiting treatment had service-connected disabilities, although it is the policy of the administration to provide hospital facilities for all non-service disabilities wherever room is available.

In his effort to provide more hospital space, Gen. Omar Bradley has obtained the use of six army hospitals and in addition, navy has agreed to make available 9,850 beds in navy hospitals. The army has agreed to supply up to 10,000 beds if they can obtain the necessary personnel to service them.

Maj. Gen. Paul R. Hawley, who recently resigned from the army to take over full charge of the veterans' medical and surgical division, asserts that more than 13,000 veterans discharged from the service have their hearing affected and have gone through rehabilitation programs. He estimated that in the next 20 years there would be from 200,000 to 400,000 hard-of-hearing veterans as a result of war service.

Questions and Answers

Q. My son was in the army for 3 years, overseas 18 months. Before going, he took out an allotment for my three children, but I never received it. He also sent $30 to me out of his check, but I didn't know it at the time, thinking it was the allotment to the children. When he came home, he told me I was not receiving the allotment. I would like to know if I can still get it.—Mrs. L. R. S., Wasola, Mo.

A. The army says that if the allotment was actually deducted from your son's pay he is entitled to a refund of the amount deducted. Write to the Office of Dependency Benefits, U. S. Army, Newark 2, N. J., giving all details, son's full name and serial number.

Q. I am a veteran of this war and was wounded November 19, 1944, and since have been unable to do much of anything. I got discharged two weeks ago and decided I had to have money so I went up to see about getting a G. I. loan. They told me the only things you could get a loan on was to buy a home or a business. Now I have been misled, for I thought I could get a loan on anything my local banker would let me have the money on, so I am stuck. I want to buy a tractor and equipment so I can farm, also build on my house I already have paid for. Now how can I do it?—E. T. M., Arlington, Kan.

A. The G. I. law provides you may obtain money for both these purposes, either a tractor for furthering your business of farming or to repair, remodel or make alterations to your home. The law also provides, however, that you must first obtain a lender who will make the loan and that the lender is the judge of whether or not you are a good risk. Would suggest you obtain from your nearest veterans' administration a list of approved lenders in your town and seek out one who will agree to make the loan.

Q. I have sugar diabetes 100 per cent. Was inducted before the war and spent three months and was discharged in January after war was declared. They sent me to the veterans' facilities for application for compensation, but they turned me down, said the fact was on my induction papers. I appealed to Washington and was turned down there. Please tell me how I can get some help from the government.—L. W., Poplarville, Miss.

A. I am afraid there is nothing you can do since your disability was evident when you were inducted, unless you can present evidence it was aggravated by your short service, or that you have some other disability.

Q. I would like some information regarding the whereabouts of my brothers. One is with the 600th Port company, APO 562. The other with the 54th Reif. Bn. APO 772. Could you tell me where they are located and if they may be home soon?—Mrs. G. R. E., Arcadia, Calif.

A. The 600th Port company arrived in New York last August and the 54th Rein. Bn. was inactivated in France on November 4, 1945. If they have not arrived home, they may have been transferred to other units.

Noise—Masterpiece

It has been stated that a neighbor's repeated knocking on his door at night gave Beethoven the inspiration for the four drum beats motif in his Fifth Symphony.

When another composer awoke one morning he stretched, looked at his watch, and saw it was time to get up. "Hi-Ho-Hum-Hum," he yawned. "Hi-Ho-Hum-Hum."

Today every symphony orchestra in the world plays those same four notes—the opening of Tchaikovsky's B flat minor piano concerto.

Arthur T. Sprague Seeks Nomination

Seeking the nomination for the state legislature which he voluntarily gave up in 1942 in order to join the navy, Arthur T. Sprague, LaGrange, Illinois declared today that: "I feel it is my duty not only to my comrades of the last three and a half years but to my former constituents and to my friends, and neighbors, that I place my experience in the State Legislature at their disposal now—that experience broadened and tempered by my war service."

Sprague is a candidate for the Republican nomination for the state legislature from the seventh senatorial district, an office to which he was elected in 1938 and again in 1940. Supported by his own Republican organization of Lyons Township, he is recommended by the Better Government Association, the Chicago Daily News, the Western Suburban Women's Republican Club, the New Trier Women's Republican Club and many other Republican and civic organizations.

"There are many problems that have changed since I left for naval service," Sprague pointed out, "but none has changed more than the attitude of those men and women who have served in foreign lands. We have a new and deeper appreciation of our country and a finer respect for what it has to offer."

Concerning Sprague's service in the legislature, Elmer J. Schnaskenberg, Speaker of the Illinois House during Sprague's last term, says: "He has been a highly intelligent and thorough legislator. During the time he served under me while I was speaker and for some years prior thereto, I observed the mastery with which he presented his position. The experience which he has had in the legislature and his innate ability combine to make him a legislator valuable not only to the district which sends him to Springfield but to the State as a whole."

Horn's Boxers Steal Show

Wednesday night March 20th at Blue Island Eagle Hall, the Mt. Greenwood Boys Club fought the Savoy A. C. of Chicago. Mt. The show consisted of seven bouts and entertainment. Results: Marvin White 118. Savoy A. C. dropped a three round decision to Eddie Ortiz of Horn's boxing club.

Harry Day Savoy A. C. dropped a decision to Mike Casillo of Horn's B. C. after being dropped around the ring for three rounds by Mike. George Alsar Savoy knocked out Lou Czaranecki, Mt. Greenwood B. C. 2nd round.

The Golden Text was:

"My dearly beloved, flee from idolatry" (I Cor. 10: 14).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible:

"Yet now hear, O Jacob my servant; and Israel whom I have chosen . . . They that make a graven image are all of them vanity; and their delectable things shall not profit; and they are their own witnesses; they see not, nor know; that they may be ashamed . . . Look unto me, and be ye saved, all the ends of the earth: for I am God, and there is none else. I have sworn by myself, the word is gone out of my mouth in righteousness, and shall not return, That unto me every knee shall bow, every tongue shall swear" (Isa. 44: 1, 9; 45: 22, 23).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy:

"Error is false, mortal belief; it is illusion, without spiritual identity or foundation, and it has no real existence . . . Matter is neither a thing nor a person, but merely the objective supposition of Spirit's opposite. The five material senses testify to truth and error as united in a mind both good and evil . . . How true it is that whatever is learned through material sense must be lost because such so-called knowledge is reversed by the spiritual facts of being in Science. That which material sense calls intangible, is found to be substance. What to material sense seems substance, becomes nothingness, as the sense-dream vanishes and reality appears" (pp. 287, 312).

In These United States

Little Town in Kansas Is
'Oberammergau of Plains'

LINDSBORG, KAN.—On Sunday, April 14, and again on Easter Sunday, April 21, thousands of pilgrims will come to Lindsborg, "Oberammergau of the Plains," to pay their homage to "The Messiah," just as they have done for the past 64 years, since 1882. So much a tradition has it become that pilgrimages from all parts of the Middle West are made each Easter season to hear the inspired singing of villagers and town folk in Prosser hall, Bethany college.

Handel's "Messiah" has been sung 181 times by the Bethany college oratorio society and will be sung the 182nd time on Palm Sunday and the 183rd time on Easter Sunday. The chorus of 500 voices and orchestra of 65 pieces will be directed by Dr. Hagbard Brase, who has been the conductor since 1915.

It was the Rev. Olaf Olsson, a lover of music, who organized the first choir in Lindsborg. Later, another Lutheran pastor, the Rev. Carl Aaron Swenson, gathered an enthusiastic group in the Bethany Lutheran church for a rehearsal under direction of his wife. That was in January, 1882, and the first "Messiah" was sung the following Easter Sunday.

At first, most of the singers were farmers, but they all loved music. Through the bitter Kansas winter the singers came in sleds and lumber wagons to the rehearsals. There were many trying times, but the people remained deeply spiritual. "The Messiah" became their religion, their faith. And so it has remained from generation to generation.

The Lindsborg "Messiah" had made possible the appearances here of celebrated artists. The first one was Madame Nordica. After her recital the Bethany male chorus pulled her carriage to the local railroad station. Since that time Hempel, Elman, Schumann-Heink, Galli-Curci, and many others have inspired Lindsborg audiences with their solo parts in "The Messiah."

Over 200 Officers,

TURNER FIELD, GA.—Few former privates will sympathize with this sergeant, but they'd probably like to see him wear his arm out saluting the officers.

The strength at Turner field, which is near Albany, has been reduced to one sergeant major—and between 200 and 300 officers!

The officers, a civilian staff, and the lonely sergeant keep 550 airplanes on a flyable-storage basis. Incidentally, many of the civilian employes are former servicemen.

GI Joe (Pony) Is
Sold for $20,000

CHICAGO.—The price of "G.I. Joe" has been zooming the last few months. Now he's worth $20,000.

Joe is a Shetland pony who brought an all-time high of $13,500 at the Chicago Coliseum horse show last November. Recently an Indianapolis business man who bought Joe in Chicago sold him to J. L. Young, husband, Valley View farm, Barrington for $20,000. The pony, greatest of his breed in ring competition in the last 10 years, cost an industry, Ill., man $1,500. He sold Joe for $10,000 at the show to a Springfield buyer and H. Leslie Atlas of Wheaton. They in turn sold him to the Indianapolis man.

Farm Machinery Output Rose in 1945

WASHINGTON.—Farm machinery production in 1945 topped that of 1944 by over 20 million dollars, the civilian production administration has reported.

The production totaled $663,484,196 of which $240,060,434 or more than one-third was in repair parts and attachments.

During the second half of the year, the production of repair parts decreased and more new machinery

Kansan Watches
P-80 Fuel Tank
Fall Near Farm

SABETHA, KANS.—It's one thing to read about the P-80 Shooting Star airplane—and quite another to hear one, not be able to see it, and then have one of its fuel tanks come hurtling down from the sky and land near you. Ask Otho L. Johnstone; he can tell you!

At first Mr. Johnstone was puzzled by the sound of the jet plane, for it did not sound like the ordinary planes which fly over Kansas all the time. Unable to see the plane, he picked out the location of the sound, thinking a high-altitude flyer was in trouble.

Just then he saw an object come hurtling down, end over end. It landed farther from him than he expected, fortunately, and he went over to inspect it. Made of aluminum, it was about 12 feet long and had been crushed on one end by the fall, but not broken. There was about a gallon of fuel left in it.

Two of the fuel tanks were found in this area. First to report one was Albert Holthaus, who lives near Maple Shade school. Since the tanks were just alike, it is possible that both came from the same plane. They are auxiliary tanks which can be dropped from the plane when the fuel in them is depleted.

Jeeps Conquer Mud
For Rural Carriers

JASPER, GA.—When it comes to good old Georgia mud, Pickens county is an unwilling claimant to the state championship. But two rural mail carriers have solved the mud problem and up to now have been making their trips on almost mid-summer schedules. Jeeps turned the trick for the carriers, W. J. Hamrick and R. E. Williams.

On only one occasion were they doubtful, and that was after a two-inch rain had fallen with the mud worse than ever. But the jeeps took them through.

Hamrick had a premonition of a bad winter, so he purchased a jeep in December to serve the patrons on Talking Rock Route 1. Early in January, Jasper Route 1 got so bad that Williams could not get through with his regular car. So he hired Hamrick to drive him around in the jeep. One trip was enough to convince Williams that jeeping it was the right way to beat Pickens county mud.

Throughout the winter the jeeps, with their four-wheel drive, have been able to travel over every road in the county. And so far "neither snow, nor rain, nor heat nor night (nor mud) stays these couriers from swift completion of their appointed rounds."

Rural carriers, who have long held that "the mail must go through," have thus found a peacetime use for the reliable jeep which won so many laurels in war.

STILL WORKING . . . Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, first woman to be chief executive of a state—she was governor of Wyoming at one time—is now director of the U. S. mint. She is shown with Edwin H. Dressel, superintendent of the Philadelphia mint, as they examine the plaster casts of the new Roosevelt dime.

SOME earnest and able compiler of facts and figures has estimated there are over 30 million citizens, young and old, male and female, who are directly or indirectly interested in baseball.

Grantland Rice

I believe these figures are on the short side. We have 22 million high school kids for a starter, and most of these follow baseball, in one way or another. The range is from 8 to 80 years, and this includes those who play at the game, see the games, follow the box scores and the standings in the daily newspapers or hear games over the radio. My estimate would be 40 million, including the fanatics and the only mildly interested.

This is only a guess. But that many through newspaper and radio must follow a world series.

Many or most of the regulars have their favorite ball players. They may dig back into the past, or they may pick a few from the modern library. The leading favorite in the game's long history has been Babe Ruth.

Proof here is simple. Babe has gone into such cities as Philadelphia and Boston when they were trailing and drawing less than thousand at home games. But when the Babe came to town they had to call police reserves to the scene.

Next to Ruth we'd have Ty Cobb and after Ty Cobb there would be Honus Wagner. Among those of more recent date, there are four who belong among the rafters of the roof—Pepper Martin, Dizzy Dean, Carl Hubbell and Bob Feller. And you can't leave out Hank Greenberg.

Pepper Martin, one of the greatest hustlers baseball ever knew, was everybody's favorite, wherever he played. You got the idea that he was willing and ready to break a neck or a leg to get where he was headed for, and you were usually right.

The 1946 Favorites

Who will carry most of the public favor from city to city through 1946? In Boston the leading candidates at this spot are Ted Williams and Dave Ferriss. Among the Yankees you will find Bill Dickey, Joe DiMaggio and Joe Gordon—with Phil Rizzuto close up. Starnweiss will be another. Terry Moore and Marty Marion will lead the Cardinals, who have several other candidates.

Hank Greenberg and Al Newhouser will head the cast for the Tiger zoo. For the Giants you'll find Mel Ott and Johnny Mize in front when the season opens.

What about the Dodgers? In this dizzy land of Bumdom they change with startling rapidity from day to day. Dixie Walker has been the civic nomination, or the people's choice, for some years. Whether Dixie will retain the affections of the nation's most turbulent and tempestuous baseball crowds remains to be seen. If anything happens to Dixie, or if it happens to be untrue what they say about Dixie, an early nomination is Peewee Reese.

The Cleveland situation is simple. The Indian's contribution to the favorite class will be one Robert Feller who will lure out the multitudes in fancy numbers at each start. What about the Cubs? Andy Pafko will be one of them and so will Phil Cavarretta and Hank Borowy. The able veteran Stan Hack will also get some votes.

At times it is hard to tell just what qualities are needed to make some ball player the crowd's favorite. Hustle is always one of the main points. The populace likes to see the athlete giving all he has. Home-run hitters always have a strong call. So do strike-out pitchers. Good people who are there in the clutch or pinch also harvest their share of fanville's affection.

The All-Time Best

Who have been my ten favorite ball players? It doesn't matter much, but here they go—Babe Ruth, Ty Cobb, Joe Jackson, Tris Speaker, Hans Wagner, Dizzy Dean, Pepper Martin, Rube Waddell, Christy Mathewson, Pete Alexander, Plus Walter Johnson. Old Barney's pitching motion and the ball you couldn't follow were still something to look at. Carl Hubbell also belongs in this group. So does Bill Dickey. Ten isn't enough. As an artist Hal Chase has no equal.

Just what favorite crop the new season will give us is in the so-called laps of the gods. There is time enough later on to take this up.

Bow and Arrow Records

Every record improves in sport and archery has made a big advance since the days of the Sioux and the Apaches, the Iroquois and the Mohicans. Their range was rarely beyond 200 yards. But in 1941 Curtis Hill of Dayton, Ohio, set a new mark a 614 yards, 8 inches—a new record for what is known as "free flight shooting." Hill's record for the regular flight shooting, according to Frank Menke's book is 517 yards, one foot.

Treat Frozen Combs
Early to Stop LossFertility Decreased
If Males Are Victims

While prevention of frozen combs in the poultry flock is always the best cure, once this condition has been brought about every effort should be made to reduce its ill effects.

When roosters' combs are badly frozen their ability to fertilize eggs is either greatly decreased, or in some cases entirely lost. At any rate, until the comb is completely healed, high fertility cannot be expected.

A more rapid recovery may be brought about if the frozen parts are amputated. Sharp scissors, razor or sharp snips may be used. The cut should be made in the unfrozen portion. To prevent bleeding, apply an astringent such as tincture of ferric chloride. It is usually necessary to remove the wattles as well as the comb.

Frozen combs and wattles can be prevented by dubbing the cockerels in the summer when from 6 to 12 weeks of age, when loss will be negligible.

Before placing a cockerel or rooster in the breeding pen, it should be first ascertained that his comb and wattles were not frozen the previous winter, or that he has completely recovered. In many cases, it may be a wise move to market all males with frozen combs and wattles.

Double-Blade Saw

Double-Blade Saw.

Two buck-saw blades are desirable on the farm, with one fine and one coarse blade. The combined tightener consists of two straight bars mortised loosely and bolted in the frame at one end, while at the other end they are movable in a groove on the inside of the frame.

Benefit of Artificial Insemination of Bees

Artificial insemination is not new. It has stood the test and is being successfully applied in animal husbandry. Its use with bees was delayed until recent work by the federal experiment stations pointed the way to artificial insemination to improve honey yield.

The advantages will be possible to improve stock to a high degree. The practice will not immediately be practiced by bee raisers but will be limited to experiment stations and specialists who are now in a position to furnish improved honeybee stock by this method of breeding. The necessity for increased bee population may be aided by this method. It is also important that farmers time their spraying so as not to kill off large numbers of bees, as has been the case in the past.

Use High Frequency in Sterilization of Eggs

By sterilizing the egg, killing the germ, better keeping quality is secured from market eggs when subjected to high frequency. The principle is somewhere between radio and diathermy.

Certain bacteria on the shell are also destroyed and the white of the egg is slightly stiffened, so that when broken in the frying pan the yolk stands out above it, producing a better cooking egg.

A SUPERINTENDENT of schools visited a night-school for Negro adults. He was called upon to congratulate an old Negress. She had enrolled at the start of the course with a single, avowed intent—to learn to write her name. She had succeeded, and the course was at an end, and she was leaving.

The next year the superintendent visited the same school. The old woman had enrolled again. "Why?" he asked her.

"Ah's goin' to learn to write mah name," she said.

"But you learned that last year."

"Ah knows dat. But now Ah gone got married."

ORLAND PARK

by Mrs. S. S. Knox

After a serious operation at St. Bernard's hospital in Chicago about three weeks ago, Patricia Conover, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Conover, is home and getting along nicely. While in the hospital, her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Huntley of Detroit, Michigan visited her.

Col. and Mrs. Herbert Fenwick entertained Col. and Mrs. J. K. Fogle Tuesday evening, March 12th. This was the first meeting in five years between the two colonels. Both have served in World War II and members of the 108th Observation Squadron.

Col. Fenwick has just returned to the Sunny Crest Farm in Orland and has made quite a reputation as an eye, ear and nose specialist.

Last Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Karl Ekberg entertained Mrs. Ida Engdahl, Mrs. E. Lindquist and son Einar of Chicago. In the afternoon they all drove to Flossmoor to visit friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Anderson were pleasantly surprised when notified that tickets had been reserved for Mrs. Anderson by her "Sunshine Sister" for the production of "Craig's Wife" by the Palos Village Players. They attended the performance Friday evening, March 22nd at the Palos Community Hall. Several Orland folks also attended the performance.

Col. and Mrs. J. K. Fogle have returned from a week end visit in Anderson, Ind., with the latter's mother, Mrs. S. C. Ballard.

Mrs. Elsie Yunker who had the misfortune of breaking her ankle a few weeks ago, is able to get around without the aid of crutches.

Mr. Walter Yunker underwent surgery March 19 in the Wabash hospital in Decatur, Ill. From last reports the doctor states he is doing satisfactory and hopes to be home soon. The family visited him last Saturday.

Mrs. Elsie Yunker received word that her son Van Earl Yunker, S 2-c was sent to Seattle, Wash., from the army in Chicago and that he left that city Saturday for Pearl Harbor. Before Van left Seattle, he met Bud Yunker, a cousin and was able to spend two hours with him. He did not have time to see Bob Estand who is stationed about 3 miles from Seattle, but Bob and Bud have been able to spend part of their liberties together. Just in case anyone would like to drop Bud a line, his address is, Wallace Yunker, S 1-c, U.S.S. Bunker Hill CV-17, 5th Div., Naval Station, Seattle, 99, Wash.

Eugene Yunker, another son of Mrs. Elsie Yunker is going thru the process of being discharged at Ft. Hueneme, Cal. He expects to be home next month.

Wednesday April 10, Dist. 19 of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers will hold a conference on Homemaking at the Academy Methodist Church of No. Harvey, 146th St., and Green. Registration at 9:30 a. m. Conferences on Homemaking and that Easter Bonnet; a skit, "How We Look

Roxy Theatre Offers Special Feature Attraction

A pulsating story of a people's date with destiny kept thru the flaming fury and crimson courage of a handful of heroes who would not be subdued is told in "Back to Bataan", which will open at the Roxy theatre at Lockport, Wednesday. Starred in this epic of grit and glory are John Wayne, Anthony Quinn and Buelah Bondi.

Wayne is cast in the leading role as an American colonel who, just before the fall of Bataan, is ordered to leave his command and go into the hills to organize guerrilla resistance groups. The exciting activities of these little bands, their harassing of Jap supply lines and their untiring efforts to prepare for the day General MacArthur would make good his promise to return are all woven into the theme of this unusual offering. All the principal characters in the story are based on real-life figures. The dramatic recreation of the "March of Death", MacArthur landing on Leyte and the Rangers' daring release of the American prisoners in Cabanatuan, lends the picture impressive stark realism.

"Weekend at the Waldorf", with Ginger Rogers, Lana Turner and Walter Pidgeon, will be the featured attraction at the Roxy theatre Sunday thru Tuesday.

Boat Show Is Coming Event

Boating and yachting enthusiasts will have their first post-war look at "what's new" in boats and equipment when the Chicago National Boat Show opens at the Coliseum, March 30th. The show will run thru two weekends, ending April 7. Boats and accessories will be displayed by more than 70 companies between the hours of one p. m. and eleven p. m., each day, according to Hubbard H. Erickson, general manager of the event.

Exhibiting manufacturers will display aluminum and plastic boats, new motors, lights, and other equipment embodying many war-time innovations and improvements. The experience gained in the filling of war orders by boat and accessory manufacturers has proved valuable to their post-war pleasure craft production, Erickson points out.

The Chicago National Boat Show is the country's as well as Chicago's first such exhibition since the end of the war. Previous Chicago shows were staged at Navy Pier, also under Erickson's management for many years.

Cautions Pedestrians On Night Walking

The Greater Chicago Safety Council has issued several hints for night pedestrians, provoked by the widespread false assumption on the part of the pedestrian that he is seen by the motorist when the headlights of the automobile are focused upon him.

Joseph F. Stech, manager of the Council said:

"At night the motorist is driving under a tremendous visibility handicap. Just because you see his headlights does not mean he sees you. When you have to cross the street, do so at an intersection. The light is usually better there.

"If you have to walk in a suburban or rural district at night, stay on the sidewalks as much as possible. Carry a light in your hand where practicable, or a white handkerchief. He further warned pedestrians who have to walk on a rural highway at night to do so on the left hand side, facing traffic. He continued:

"When two cars approach in meeting each other, step off the highway and give them plenty of room. Remember, neither driver may see you because of opposing headlights."

Last year, according to statistics, day automobile accidents increased more than night accidents in urban areas, but the trend of night accidents in rural areas was much worse. A survey showed that seven out of ten persons killed in night accidents last year were pedestrians, Stech concluded.

Urge Veterans to Hang On to Their Insurance

"Hang on to your government insurance" is the advice of every insurance expert to the veterans who are returning home. It is a bargain, since all the expense of handling is met by the federal government.

Since the veteran has eight years in which to convert, Service Officer Max LaBordia at 13104 S. Western Ave., Blue Island suggests the veteran continue paying the war-time term rate until his income is stabilized. He has remittance forms for making premium payments.

Congress is now considering amendments that will permit payment of the insurance in a lump sum, with other proposed improvements which will make the veterans insurance even more valuable and desirable.

Dividend Printing

►There is one kind of printing that you want—printing that pays a dividend on the investment.

►A letterhead with right sort of type properly balanced is a real business asset. It wins the approval of the person receiving your letter, and while he is in this frame of mind your letter is read.

►The same reasoning applies to any other job of printing. Neatness, the right weight and kind of paper, the color of the ink, the selection of the type, all play an important part in the production of dividend printing.

We are equipped to give you that kind of printing. Let us prove it to you.

IN MEMORIAM

IN LOVING MEMORY of Mrs. Carl Vogt who was called into eternity March 29, 1929.
Loving and kind in all her ways,
Upright and just to the end of her days,
Sincere and true in heart and mind,
A beautiful memory she left behind.
LOVING HUSBAND AND CHILDREN

IN MEMORIAM

ERWIN H. MOHR—In loving memory of our beloved son who passed away eight years ago April 1, 1938.
We mourn you in silence
No eyes can see us weep,
But many a silent tear is shed
While others are deep in sleep
More and more each day we miss you,
Friends may think the wound is healed
But, oh the loneliness and sorrow
That lies in our heart concealed.

Native Son of Frankfort Experience In Judicial Line

An attorney for the past 35 years, Albert H. Krusemark, Sr., is seeking the Republican party nomination for the office of County Judge.

Although he lives in Frankfort, he has maintained a law office in Joliet throughout his long law career. During this time Mr. Krusemark has handled cases of all types and appeared in the County, Probate and Circuit courts here on numerous occasions. In addition, he has argued cases in the Federal District Court at Chicago, before the Appellate Court and the Illinois State Supreme Court.

These many court appearances and his widely varied law practice have endowed him with a judicial mien and temperament necessary for a County Judge. Attorney Krusemark, through his many years in law work, has achieved an insight into human nature necessary in successfully dispensing with the duties of the County Judge's office. He also has had experience in handling special assessments and taxes, matters which must be adjudicated by the County Judge.

Actively identified with the Republican party, he has been a G. O. P. precinct committeeman in Frankfort for more than 20 years.

A native of Will County, Krusemark was born and reared on a farm in Manhattan. In 1911 he completed a law course and was graduated from the Northwestern School of Law. He holds membership in the Lions Club and the St. Peter's Evangelical and Reformed Church at Frankfort.

Faster Trains West Planned By Rock Island

Faster schedules and new modern trains between Chicago and Los Angeles were announced this week by the Rock Island and Southern Pacific railroads.

Beginning June 2 the railroads jointly will provide 49 hour daily streamliner service from Chicago to Los Angeles and 48 hour service on the return trip. Streamlined cars of the Golden State Limited will be used at first, but new equipment will be added as it becomes available until the train is entirely new.

The schedule will cut 14½ hours from the east bound trip and 13 hours and 25 minutes from the run to Los Angeles. No extra fare will be charged.

Early in 1947 the railroads will start triweekly service between Chicago and Los Angeles on a 39½ hour schedule. This will be provided with new diesel powered streamline trains of 11 cars with luxury appointments and colorful interior decoration. The exteriors of stainless steel will be in silver and red. It will be an extra fare train.

The railroads also announced that the Californian, popular economy train on the Golden State route, will resume its fast pre-war schedule.

Late this year the Rock Island will put into service a new streamlined Rocket between Chicago and Omaha, Neb. Trains from each city will start in the morning and the trip will be completed by early evening.

New all room sleeping cars have been ordered for the Twin Star Rocket operating between Minneapolis and Houston. The Rock Island already has placed orders for 57 new passenger cars. These include diners, day and night coaches, sleeping cars, buffet cars, and coffee-shop cars.

Nylon Overcharge Brings Stiff Fine

The Chicago area's high of $22.87 a pair was paid today for nylon hose—and the U.S. Treasury was the collector.

James F. Riley, Chicago metropolitan district OPA director, announced that the Larned Stores, 165 E. 154th St., Harvey paid the $22.87 amount as a voluntary settlement for each of 13 pairs of nylon and rayon hose it had sold at from 15c to 35c overcharge.

The store, operated by J. D. Dustin, paid exactly $297.40 penalty to the treasury for a total of $2.60 he had collected in overcharges from 13 customers—or approximately 114 times the amount of the overcharges.

In addition, checks for from 15c to 35c went into the mails to the 13 customers who had been overcharged.

The penalty, based partly on the number of violations, and the refunds was agreed upon by the dealer and his South Cook County Price Control Board 110. The dealer admitted that he had charged $2.00 a pair for nylons on which the ceiling price was $1.65 and that he had collected $1.01 a pair for rayons on which the ceiling price was $0.6c. The board's recommendation for settlement was approved by the district office.

Complaints were received by the price control board that the dealer had also made tie-in sales on nylons—requiring customers to purchase $3.00 of other merchandise in order to obtain a pair of nylons.

"The price panel," Riley said, "has this advantage: It is not a court. It is made up of volunteers, all responsible citizens. It can deal informally with the retailer. And it merely decides what further steps to recommend at higher levels in the OPA. If the case can be settled within the community, every effort is made to do so."

"Settlements are recommended by the price panel only after the retailer, during informal conferences, has freely admitted price violations," Riley said. "Panel members are not empowered, however, to make settlements. They merely suggest their acceptance to the district director of OPA. The district director, acting on behalf of the national price administrator, may agree to these settlements, as he has done in this case."

ARMY TO RE-ENLIST CERTAIN VETERAN'S IN GRADE

Capt. G. M. Unsworth, local Army Recruiting Officer, stated today that the Army will re-enlist certain veterans who have been discharged under honorable conditions since May 12, 1945, in grades appropriate to their training and experience, effective immediately.

Capt. Unsworth stated the Army urgently needs certain veterans who served at least 6 months in their Military Occupational Specialties. Men who otherwise would be ineligible for re-enlistment in grade due to lapse of time since their separation from the service, may still be re-enlisted in grades up to and including Technical Sergeant.

The list includes 350 different specialties. Veterans who are interested may see the complete list at U. S. Army Recruiting Sub-Station, 1602 Otto Boulevard, Chicago Heights, or from the Recruiting representatives on duty at the Postoffices, Harvey, Blue Island or Calumet City. The captain stressed the importance of applying early, because the different specialties as they are filled will be withdrawn. Men interested should bring with them the Army Separation Qualification Record (Form 100) which they received when discharged.

COUNTY JUDGE

The primary election April 9, will give every voter of Will County an opportunity to register a choice for county office. I want to be nominated and elected county judge. My experience as assistant state's attorney, in charge of all tax litigation and all contested county court matters, together with my work in juvenile delinquency cases, has given me a first-hand opportunity to study the work of the county court. I will devote all my time to the affairs of the county court. You will find my name second on the list for county judge. Please put an X in front of my name. I will greatly appreciate your vote and the votes of your friends.

R. I. Conductor Tells Interesting Rail Yarn

The following article appeared in the "Rock Island News Digest" a publication of the Rock Island Railroad for their employees, and written by Mr. Rufus Pickett, a conductor on the Chicago-Joliet train and whom the Mokena students presented a gift recently as a birthday gift:

RUFUS'S RAMBLINGS

"I first started on the Windy Mountain and Eastern as a trucker in the freight depot and later transferred to yard service. That was way back yonder in horse and buggy days, and to us around the foot of the Blue Ridges it was the days of ox teams and covered wagons. Hundreds of them would come into town hauling stuff to be shipped on the railroad, and if it was easier to transfer a load by moving a car instead of a wagon I borrowed the customer's team and made the spot. The officials soon saw that was a good thing so they bought a yoke of steers for me, and since there was no other means of doing any switching from the time that the down freight left in the morning till the up freight pulled in that night, I distributed the loads and empties and made up the outgoing train with a yoke of steers till they finally got a coal burning locomotive.

"After I had been here on the Rock Island for twenty years, I received a letter from the general manager of the Windy Mountain and Eastern which read in part: 'According to the Uniform Code of Operating Rules effective November 1, 1940, an engine is a unit propelled by any form of energy and used in train or yard service. Since that wording supersedes the old definition which stated that an engine required the use of track for meeting or passing we concede that old Buck and Ben were a double unit and an engine, and since you were in charge of them you are hereby reinstated as a yard conductor. We regret that we have nothing in our personal record files regarding your original time of service either in the depot nor switching with borrowed power, but if you care to return we will make your seniority begin with the date on the cancelled check used in the purchase of the above-named oxen.'"

—Rufus Pickett

ELECTRIC BROODERS

get Chicks off to a Flying Start!

What to do before your chicks arrive

Move brooder house to a well-drained spot—preferably one where no chicks have been raised for two years.

Make certain the brooder house has plenty of direct sunlight, fresh air, is free from drafts.

Thoroughly clean, scrape, and scrub the brooder house walls and floor with a hot lye water solution.

Clean and disinfect brooder, fountains, and other equipment to prevent spread of disease.

Start the electric brooder a few days before the chicks arrive to get heat regulated and to dry out brooder house and litter.

Be sure to use brooders according to their rated chick capacity... a temperature of 95 degrees to 100 degrees is desirable at the start, governed somewhat by the actions of the chicks. Normally, the temperature should be lowered 5 degrees each week until the 85 degree mark is reached.

Cold snaps hold no terrors for baby chicks arriving at poultryman Howard Mann's place near Kankakee. They step right from the shipping box into the protective warmth of electric brooders where they spend their first critical weeks in complete comfort and safety.

By using thermostatically controlled electric brooders, Howard has cut chick losses to a minimum... has produced more healthy birds with less work and worry.

Plan now to step-up your poultry profits by raising more of the chicks you buy. Visit your farm equipment dealer the next time you are in town and select one of the chick-saving electric brooders available. If he is unable to supply you with one at this time, drop us a card and we will immediately mail you approved plans for a homemade brooder which you can build from materials on hand.

Electricity for Brooding and other farm chores is available to more than 89% of all the farms in the area served by this Company.

Civil Air Patrol, Squadron 613-3
by 2nd Lt. Elyne Conel

STADIUM ROUNDUP—In the aero section at the Sport and Travel Show in Chicago's Stadium, I greeted and shook "wing tips" with Lt. Jack Morton of Civil Air Patrol Sqn. 613-3 and Mrs. Morton, Mr. Jones of Beverly Flying Club and Mrs. Jones, Bill Jacobs of Rubikan Airport, Mr. M. Fishman of Ravenswood Airport, Ed. Prosperi of Prosperi Airport with his wife and mother, Mrs. Mary (Ma) Prosperi, Arthur H. Starnes, famous parachute jumper, and dapper Capt. Cullerton who knocked down eight enemy planes in one day. The Captain's dad was co-pilot of the stadium show.

PLANE TO SEE—Lined up like mechanical chorus beauties at the show were the Luscomb Silveira, Globe's Swift, The Aerona Champion, Encoupe, A Cub Cruiser and a Cub Trainer with floats. A former WASP, Beverly Frisbee, Mandel Bros., representative for the Cubs, gave a "cracking good show" as she highlighted their "sweet" features. Most of the fellas noticed her's too.

FLYING SANS WINGS OR POWER—Look, he's climbing, shooting through space—higher and higher—now watch that fast-landing! Ah perfect! How's it done. On skis off a slide during the Stadium floor show.

FREE FALL FREE OF FEAR—In 1941 Rubikan Airport was the scene of a now famous jump by Art Starnes. Often invited by the Army to make recommendations, his jump was made with 285 pounds of special parachute and miscellaneous equipment to determine heart, respiratory, sight and mind reaction. Art left the plane at 30,800 feet, fell 29,300 feet before opening his chute. Maximum speed 230 M.P.H. He claims to have established a teaching method that makes a student unafraid, and that with proper training and equipment, parachute jumping can be safe and offers one of the finest of all American sports. So for a free fall, free of fear, join his class at 203 N. Wabash, Chicago.

CHECK POINTS—Pal-Waukee Airport sold to Parks Brothers. Large Chicago Dept. Stores and hotels are enthusiastically considering and planning helicopter landing fields on the roofs. Aim: Service to Municipal and Douglas Airport. The new Idlewild Airport to be built in N. Y. at a cost of 200 million dollars will be the world's largest, employing 60,000 people, scheduling 1300 daily plane flights. The National Advisory Committee For Aeronautics predicts: planes capable of 1,000 M.P.H. will be developed within 3 years, laboratory tests with small models at a speed of 4,200 M.P.H.

Contrary to rumors—Civil Air Patrol will remain an Auxiliary of the Army Air Forces. A young diesel engineer, Fred A. Thaheld has used his new 235 pound diesel engine in a light plane, and reports a 120 mile flight on 8½¢ worth of fuel.

UP-ORTUNITIES—2 new worthwhile booklets are available from the Govt. 1st: Title: "The Path of Flight". Takes the Aggravation out of Navigation", 40c. 2nd: Title: "Employment Outlook in Civil Aviation". If you're thinking of making flying your career, starting an airport, flying school or repair shop set this at 10c. Send check or money to Superintendent of Documents, U. S. Government Printing Office, Washington, 25, D. C.

IST SOLOS—Despite recent "ropey" weather, Gordon Murrey and Geo. Hensman went up alone in Cubs at Prosperi Airport. Also going up at that filed are 9 new metal T hangers.

FLYING WITH A THOUSAND FEET. The C.A.A. requires flyers to stay at a minimum of 1,000 feet above towns and cities. So let's all stay high over Tinley Park, filling requests of residents, and keeping our licences. Certainly you don't want your name to appear in the list of C.A.A. suspensions, that read this, quote: "No. 4423 suspends private certificate of _____ for 6 months because he flew at altitudes below 1,000 feet in the vicinity of _____".

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

GEORGE: "Yes, I certainly would like to hear why you call that an old fashioned idea, Judge."OLD JUDGE: "Glad to tell you, George.
Until recently, a person known as an alcoholic was generally treated as a social outcast. Little if anything was done to understand him or help him. But, during the past few years, medical research and study has developed that alcoholics are really sick people... that there is usually a deep-rooted physical, social or emotional reason behind their behavior. That's why today somuch is being done to help them by finding out and correcting the condition that leads them to excess."GEORGE: "How many folks are there like that, Judge?"OLD JUDGE: "Well, according to scientific research, 95% of the people who drink, drink sensibly. 5% do so unwisely, at times.
Included in that 5% is the small percentage of the sick people I'm talking about."GEORGE: "That certainly gives me a clearer picture. It's the most sensible approach I've ever heard of on the subject."

Fred R. Adams Is Candidate For Office Of Probate Judge Of Will County

Attorney Fred R. Adams has announced his candidacy as a Republican Candidate for re-election to the office of Probate Judge of Will County, Illinois, in the coming Primary, April 9.

Mr. Adams expressed his appreciation for the kindness and generosity extended to him by the Voters of Will County and as their servant has been acting as Judge of the Probate Court.

It has been his honest endeavor to render to all the people of Will County, Illinois, honest and efficient service being fair and impartial to all persons having business with that Court. His qualifications and experiences gained over the years he has been acting as Probate Judge justify his aspirations to be re-elected to this Honorable office.

Mr. Adams is a son of the late William Benjamin Adams, who was born and raised in Joliet, Illinois, and a grandson of the late Micajah L. Adams, an early settler in Joliet. He got his early schooling in the public schools of Joliet, the Joliet Township High school and the Putland's Business College. After practicing in the County for several years he took an examination as a National Certified Public Accountant and now holds a certificate as such. Before taking up the study of law he was obliged to go to work and one of his first jobs was with the Illinois Steel Company in the blast furnaces at Joliet, Illinois. While in their employ he was offered a position with Charles W. Goodspeed in the abstracting business where he worked for several years gaining very valuable experience in real estate law and titles which has served him very well in his work in the Probate Court. He then entered the Will County National Bank at Joliet, Illinois, where for nine and one-half years he served as Auditor and Assistant Cashier. It was during the latter employment that he completed his law course and graduated from the Hamilton College of Law at Chicago and received his degree Bachelor of Law. When the late Judge Samuel J. Drew was elected Probate Judge of Will County, Mr. Adams was appointed Assistant Judge and served in that capacity five years. He then resigned this position and entered the general practice of law becoming associated with Mr. Eneshia Meers, Edward Gorey, T. V. Gorey and Albert H. of law until he was appointed to the office of Probate Judge upon the death of Judge Drew. Mr. Adams has served the people of Will County in that capacity ever since with the exception of one term when the Democratic landslide took place in 1934.

At the request of the Will County Board of Supervisors and Joseph H. Hartley, Clerk of the County Court, Mr. Adams has been acting as Judge of the County Court since the death of the late Judge Glen L. Cowing, along with his duties as Judge of the Probate Court. He is a member of the First Presbyterian Church of Joliet, is serving as Chairman of the Advisory Board for Registrants under the Selective Service Law used under World War II; is a member of Ansar Temple, Order of the Mystic Shrine; is a thirty-second degree Mason; is a member of the Elks Lodge, the Moose, Will County Bar Association, Illinois State Bar Association and is a past President of the Illinois County and Probate Judges' Association of Illinois.

Illinois Chairman Named for Chicken Breeding Program

Appointment of Dr. Cliff D. Carpenter, Chicago, who is president of Institute of American Poultry Industries, as state chairman of the Chicken-of-Tomorrow Committee opens the way for Illinois poultrymen to compete with breeders from other states in the nationwide effort to produce better meat-type chickens. Goal of the three-year breeding program is to develop a chicken that will yield at least 10 per cent more meat in relation to bone structure, said D. D. Slade, Lexington, Ky., chairman of the national committee, in announcing Carpenter's appointment. The breeder who produces the best example of a meatier bird will receive a $5,000 cash award from A & P Food Stores, whose officials initiated the program. Other awards will total $3,000.

Objective of both the Illinois and national committees is to stimulate production of chickens that will grow more economically, Slade pointed out, and which will have a greater percentage of meat to bone, larger proportion of white to dark meat and a broader breast. The national committee is made up of representatives of all major poultry associations and the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

"The contest is open to every poultryman," Slade continued, "but it will require more than just the selection of an outstanding bird and sending it in to be judged. Each breeder must start with from 50 to 300 baby chicks of known origin and develop a strain or type of chicken that can be reproduced in commercial quantities. Only by such a program of development can poultrymen assure the nation's consumers that chickens of the future will be the source of superior meat."

"The Congressmen and members of the Illinois General Assembly to be nominated April 9 will be called upon to make decisions which will shape the affairs of our state and nation for a generation. BARR

At SPRINGFIELD

It is more than a coincidence that the 41st Senatorial District (Will and DuPage Counties) has made its greatest progress and enjoyed its greatest prosperity during the years that RICHARD J. BARR has represented this district in the State Senate at Springfield. BARR has always had great influence at the State Capitol and has been largely responsible for our GOOD ROADS, our excellent EMPLOYER-EMPLOYEE RELATIONS LAWS (model of their kind) the WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT, the FARMERS' CATTLE INDEMNITY ACT, the TEACHERS' PENSION ACT, and scores of other measures that have been of benefit to business, labor, agriculture, women and children, and such public professions and services as teaching, police, firemen, etc.

The fact that BARR'S voice and influence have been exerted for the public good is proved by the support he is given by such organizations as the Associated Employers of Illinois, the Illinois Federation of Labor, and the Illinois Agricultural Association. During World War II. SENATOR BARR'S LEADERSHIP was widely recognized. One of his sons was a Lieut. Commander in the Air Corps of the Navy, one was a private in the Army, and his son-in-law was a major in the Army. Now that victory has been gained and we are facing the great problems of reconversion, BARR'S vision, level-headedness, and constructive LEADERSHIP are needed at Springfield more than ever before. With RICHARD J. BARR representing this district in the State Senate we can be sure that the best interests of ALL THE PEOPLE will be protected, for BARR combines to an unusual degree social consciousness and good common-sense. His whole record proves it! We ALL know BARR. We know what he can do and WILL do. We know his leadership will be on the side of continued peace, public service, and GOOD TIMES for all.

Radicalism

By GEORGE S. BENSON
President of Harding College
Searcy, Arkansas

Looking Ahead

UNDOUBTEDLY Karl Marx, father of Communism, had a noble purpose. He aimed to relieve the world's oppressed people, to correct injustices and get rid of poverty. That would be fine. There is absolutely nothing wrong with a platform that flatly supports what's right and opposes what's wrong. The next step is getting everybody to agree on what's right and what's wrong.

Followers of the profound Marx didn't all see eye-to-eye with him after he left first-base. He was obliged to "run out" on the First Internationale and disband it because it was being used by a gang of ruffians, more bent on wrecking what was in sight than on building a new social order according to a noble plan. The leader and his followers were not of the same calibre.

Converts SETTING out on a to Greed reform that required changing the motives of many people, Marx recruited followers without changing their motives. Selfish intentions can be mustered under a banner of lofty aims. Already this year news wires have carried a story about leaders in the Communist movement addressing large audiences of working men, "whooping it up" for strikes.

It is not that Labor, considered broadly, is destructive in character or shot through with Communistic ideas. It's not true. It is true however that working people are numerous and therefore a powerful segment of American society. People who want to overthrow the only system on earth that gives a working man a chance are very wise to ask the workers' help. It can't be done without them.

Covetous COMMUNISM has Epidemic failed exactly as often as it has been tried, and Karl Marx has been dead more than sixty years. This doctrine of "tear down in haste and rebuild at leisure" has been tried on American soil. Time after time each experiment, at having everything in common, comes down of its own poison and dies or relapses into a dictatorship. Communism is a political disease.

Russia is called a Communistic nation but it is far from it. The government set out in that direction once, broke down property lines, degraded the family to a bawdy level, overthrew the church, rejected God and bogged down in abject poverty. Now it is being run by a minority party, made up of some 3% of the citizens, and nobody else can even vote. A sorry situation they have.

Under a dictatorship Russia is doing a little better than it did under Communism but still is nothing to brag about. Russian wages are not more than a third as high as those in America. If the average Russian farmer should visit the average American farmer he would think he was in a king's palace. There is a cure for this plague and it is no mystery. It lies in obedience to God.

SOIL DOCTORS AID HUMAN HEALTH BY BUILDING FERTILITY

CHICAGO—Soil doctors are not only curing the ailments of sick soils through conservation measures building up the fertility level, but they are promoting higher human health standards as well, according to a statement by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

"Leading agronomists have been preaching for years that human beings are the result of what they eat," the statement points out. "People whose daily diet comes from food produced on fertile soil will have stronger bodies, sturdier physical characteristics and greater resistance to infection than those nourished on crops deficient in vitamins, minerals and proteins necessary to good health."

"The remedy agronomists recommend for dietary deficiency caused by exhaustion of soil fertility is that the necessary minerals be restored to the soil through plowing under legume crops and crop residues and by applying sufficient quantities of mixed fertilizers containing nitrogen, phosphorus and potash."

EARLY DELIVERY OF PLANT FOOD BENEFITS FARMER

CHICAGO — Foresight in making early arrangements for 1946 fertilizer supplies and taking delivery as soon as possible will pay farmers dividends at spring planting time, according to a statement made public here by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee. "Agriculture is looking to the plant food industry for record supplies this year," the statement points out. "The only way these can be assured is for the tonnage to flow steadily from factory to farm in the months between now and spring seeding operations. That means ordering early and taking immediate delivery.

"The farmer who acts promptly helps accomplish two important results. First, he makes certain that he will secure needed fertilizer for his own particular land at exactly the time he needs it most. Second, he eases the production, storage and transportation problems faced by the manufacturer. Thus he encourages a greater overall output."

HEAVY YIELDING HYBRID CORN NEEDS MORE NUTRIMENT

CHICAGO—Hybrid corn's upward surge in popularity in recent years among the nation's farmers was indicated by a statement made public here by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee, showing that this variety accounted for nearly 65 per cent of all corn planted in the United States in 1945, compared with 22 per cent in 1939.

"In some of the Corn Belt states, hybrid plantings represented more than 95 per cent of all corn grown this year," the statement points out.

"While hybrids yield from 20 to 25 per cent more bushels per acre than old-fashioned open-pollinated varieties, they likewise make a bigger draft on the soil's plant food resources. Thus they create the need for more widespread use of fertilizers not only to make these big yields possible, but to replace to some extent at least, the nitrogen, phosphorus and potash removed by the crop.

"Recognizing these facts, most farmers have been using more fertilizer on corn each year. Farmers have been acquiring increasing knowledge about the best way to handle this crop, due to experimental projects carried on at state agricultural colleges and experiment stations."
